Cures While You Sleep. Hyomei is the most economical of all remedies for the cure of catarrh and the only one that follows a natural method in treating diseases of the respiratory or-gans. Physicians advise a change of climate for the cure of catarrh. With Hyomel a change of climate is gained while at home. Its healing balsams impregnate the air you breathe and their health-giving and germ-destroying powers go to the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs.

You take no risk in buying Hyomel. Henry Evans has so much confidence in its power to kill catarrh, grippe and ca-tarrhal colds that he sells it under his personal guarantee to refund the money

The Commissioners have reported favorably to Congress on the bill providing for the establishment of public convenience stations in the city of Washington. The District authorities state that they are also In favor of providing public baths in Washington, but that they do not consider these as of equal importance with the public convenience stations. In view of the difficulties which may arise in maintaining and policing the pools in public bath houses, the Commissioners are of the opinion that the provision for pools be left to the discretion of the Commissioners.

PALM SUNDAY SERVICE

OBSERVANCE OF THE DAY IN LOCAL CHURCHES.

Beginning of Holy Week-Program in Commemoration of Events Preceding the Crucifixion.

Tomorrow will be Palm Sunday, the first day of the most solemn week of the church year, when even those persons who are not connected with the sacred commemoration of the events just preceding the resurrection of the Christ are influenced by the general atmosphere of solemnity. Accordtian ages the "Great Week," because of the passion preceding the crucifixion of the Christ, the anniversary of which is Good Friday. Tertuilian, Lactanius, Crysostom and other writers among the early fathers mention the fact that during the week persons would fast, taking one meal of bread, salt and water in the evening, while many abstained from food during the entire week, and a still greater number would eat nothing during Good Friday and the Holy Saturday. In the middle ages the week was called the "Authentic Week," and in Germany, Denmark and the Scandina-vlan peninsula it is known as "Still Week."

By Whom Observed.

The greater number of Protestant churches do not observe this week ,but the Lutheran Church, the Church of England and the Protestant Episcopal Church have special services for each day, and the whole week is observed with great solemnity. In the Roman Catholic churches solemnization is very marked. Music of the most mournful sort is given, the altars are stripped of their ornaments, and dark drapis used for the statues and pictures All the church services during the week breathe the spirit of mourning, but toward the latter part the gloom is most intense. Palm Sunday, which marks the com-mencement of this week, is so called to commemorate the triumphant entrance of Christ to Jerusalem, when waving of palm branches was one of the marks of His welcome. In the Catholic Church and many of the Episcopal churches palms are blessed and distributed to the people. These palms are in many cases kept throughout the year. Blessing the Palms. This custom of blessing paims cannot be traced, but it is a very old one. The first writer of the west who refers to it is the venerable Bede, and it is certain it was done in the seventh century. A special service is found in the Roman Catholic missal, and also in the Greek euchologies for the blessing of palms and olive branches but in many countries where these are not procurable other trees are blessed instead. In many churches a procession of persons carrying branches of trees is formed, and appropriate hymns are sung. In the Greek Church the Book of the Gospels is borne in front, and in some Roman Catholic countries of the west a priest, or occasionally a lay figure, was led at the head, mounted upon an ass, in commemoration of the en-trance to Jerusalem, a custom still followed in Spain and Spanish South America. During the mass following the palms are held by the people, and afterward they are carried to their homes. At Rome the pro-cession of the palms, in which the pope is carried, is one of the most picturesque cer-

CHINESE LITERATURE.

Dr. Yamei Kin's Talk Yesterday at

Senator Kean's. Yesterday's talk by Madam Yamel Kin, the Chinese physician, at the home of Senator Kean, was on the subject of Chinese literature and folk-lore, and was attentive ly and appreciatively followed by a large audience. Madam Kin, whose pronunciation of English is of the purest and whose vocabulary is unusually extensive, described the intellectual phase of her countrymen in terms which revealed the richly poetic spirit of the orient. Her translations of extracts from noted Chinese stories and poems were delicate and charmingly expressive of the grace of the celestial style. She explained that the Chinese literary inspiration is derived chiefly from the de-sire to express the most possible in the least number of words. The supreme aim of the master craftsman in letters is to ing to custom, the churches of this city will, in some measure, observe the week, the Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches with appropriate services each day.

Holy week was called in the early Chris
The master craftsman in letters is to cause his reader to conceive great possibilities of imagery and thought out of a single symbol, and to use no word twice in the same composition. The magnitude of this task is to be appreciated when it is understood, as Madam Kin explained, one of the most popular of the Chinese power in the master craftsman in letters is to cause his reader to conceive great possibilities of imagery and thought out of a single symbol, and to use no word twice in the same composition. The magnitude of the chinese is understood, as Madam Kin explained, one of the most popular of the Chinese novels is in twenty-four volumes, each containing about 400 pages. This novel, the the mighty events it commemorates, story of the experiences of a being from the events which transpired during the supernatural world on this plane for a season, the lecturer briefly outlined with several passages at length. It disclosed a fervent love of nature and of great spirit-

That phase of the Chinese literature which is expressed in folk-lore, Dr. Kin said, may be traced to the same origin as that from which the European folk-lore in large part sprang. The resemblance between the two series of tales is therefore not a mere coincidence, as from India branched in both directions the anecdotes and fables and moral stories which were bred there in the Buddhistic atmosphere under religious inspiration. Some of these tales the speaker recited, with a quaint humorous appreciation which was most di-verting to her hearers. She gave a number of stories relative to the esteem in which the King of Hell is held by the Chinese, he being a far different conception from

In conclusion Dr. Kin noted the fact that China has produced thus far only one royal personage capable of creating literworthy of preservation, the Emperor Ming, whose masterplece, "The Butterfly's Choice," she rendered into graceful Eng-lish. A few words on the Chinese drama closed the lecture, after which those pres-ent were introduced to Madam Kin and refreshments were served. Today's talk is on the subject of Tsi An, the Empress Dowager of China, who, Dr. Kin says, stands as one of the most remarkable personages in history.

Regarding Pavement. As a result of the complaints of citizens and business men along K or Water street, in Georgetown, the Commissioners have written to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, directing that company to make the necessary improvements in the pavement within and adjacent to the tracks of the old Georgetown Dock, Barge and Ele evator Company, which are laid along Water street. The tracks of the old dock and barge company, it is stated, are now controlled by the Baltimore and Ohio, and it was claimed at a hearing the other day before the Commissioners that mainly on account of these old tracks the street is in a decidedly bad condition, and that repairs on the thoroughfare are greatly needed. The business men along the street asked the Commissioners to either take steps to have the tracks removed and the charter of the company revoked, or else to require the railroad company to repair the street within and adjacent to the tracks. The complainants said that they were not par-ticularly objecting to the maintenance of tracks on the street, and that they did not desire to thwart any legitimate purpose of the owners of the company to operate a railroad along the street, but that something should be done toward the improve-ment of the condition of the street.

PERMIT MAY BE GRANTED.

Apply. Mrs. Cornelia C. Fairoanks, president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, about a year ago wrote to the Commissioners stating that the society had been informed that certain parties proposed to erect a foundry upon square 172. which adjoins the property of the society on 17th street. Mrs. Fairbanks stated that the society considers that the erection of a foundry on the lot adjoining its property would be a "great discomfort, annoyance and hindrance to its work, and positively detrimental to its interests," and a protest was therefore entered against the issuance of a permit for the building of a foundry.

The writer was at that time informed, in accordance with a report of the building in-spector, that no application had then been received for the erection of a structure of the character described, and that When such application should be made the matter would be thoroughly investigated before the permit was issued.

A few days ago Building Inspector Ash-ford reported to Capt. Harding, assistant to the Engineer Commissioner, that an ap-plication had been made and plans filed for the construction of an iron shed for the storage of iron on lots 27 and 28 in square storage of iron on lots 27 and 26 in Square 172. Capt. Harding, in forwarding the pa-pers to Col. Biddle, Engineer Commissioner, stated that there is no regulation forbidding the erection of a storage shed for iron, providing it be of incombustible material. He said that section 160 of the building regulations forbids the erection of a building for use as a foundry or for a machine shop, but unless the intent to use the premises for such purposes develops there seems to be no reason for withholding the permit for the storage shed.

Morrow, assistant to the Engineer Commissioner, left Washington today for Chicago, where he goes to inspect subway and bridge construction in connec tion with the work in this city on the new union terminal station. Captain Morrow will be absent from the city about a week, and among other things he will study the methods of lining the subways and plans for roofing the tunnels. The question as to the method of construction and material to be used in the various subways along public streets in this city in connection with the union station work has occasioned considerable discussion mong the officials of the District engineer department and the engineers of the rail-road company in charge of the terminal work

An extended conference on the subject was held at the District building recently between the District officials and the rail road engineers. At the close of the confer-ence the railroad engineers stated that they would proceed with the preparation of plans for the subways to be built in Washington, and that they would shortly submit them to the District officials. It is believed that as the result of the thorough discussion of the agreement will be reached between the in-terests concerned with reference to the method of construction to be employed and the materials to be used.
